INTERIM

I came . . .

An interim of intensity begun with strangeness, an e x c i t i n g, engulfing strongeness, that nurtured familiarity.

I go . . .

An interim, that was but a shadow of time and that was all of time, is ended.

I shall remember . . .

—these lives, these days, these faces
—these components of me
—this interim of being

Dr. William Gordon Ross

DEDICATION

We humbly dedicate the CHIMES to Dr. William Gordon Ross, scholar, author and friend, who has given untiringly of himself to us as students and as individuals.

Berea College Collegiate dept. Senior class Chimes.

... and Atlas shrugged

An educator in the truest sense, Dr. Ross's concern with and study of the potential and worth of the person has resulted in his writing of a book on this subject which he has dedicated to Berea students.

these lives . . .

- . . . winning, losing, working, winning
- . . . searching, aching, needing, searching
- . . . rationalizing, compensating, malingering, rationalizing
- . . . loving, learning, knowing, loving

- . . . surprising, warm, professorial wisdom
- . . . seventeen people packed in a room systematically solving world crises
- . . . the peculiar shocking thrill of realizing the practical application of some bit of class learning

. . . clinking coins, limp cards, smoky fellowship
 . . . the reality of victory in one soul-hurled, just-caught, extra-point pass
 . . . the oddity of pain in a collarbone broken by the force of one ill-aimed block

these days . . .

. . . one red-gold leaf whirled ecstatically on the wind
. . . I kissed a snow-cold cheek
. . . quiet, colored rain

. . . waking to white-silent, snow-painted dawn
 . . . racing through stinging, chilling rain
 . . . scuffling deep, dead leaves

. . . slatey, flat-bottomed, early morning clouds
 . . . whistling, frost-filled wind
 . . . scarlet, purple, setting sun

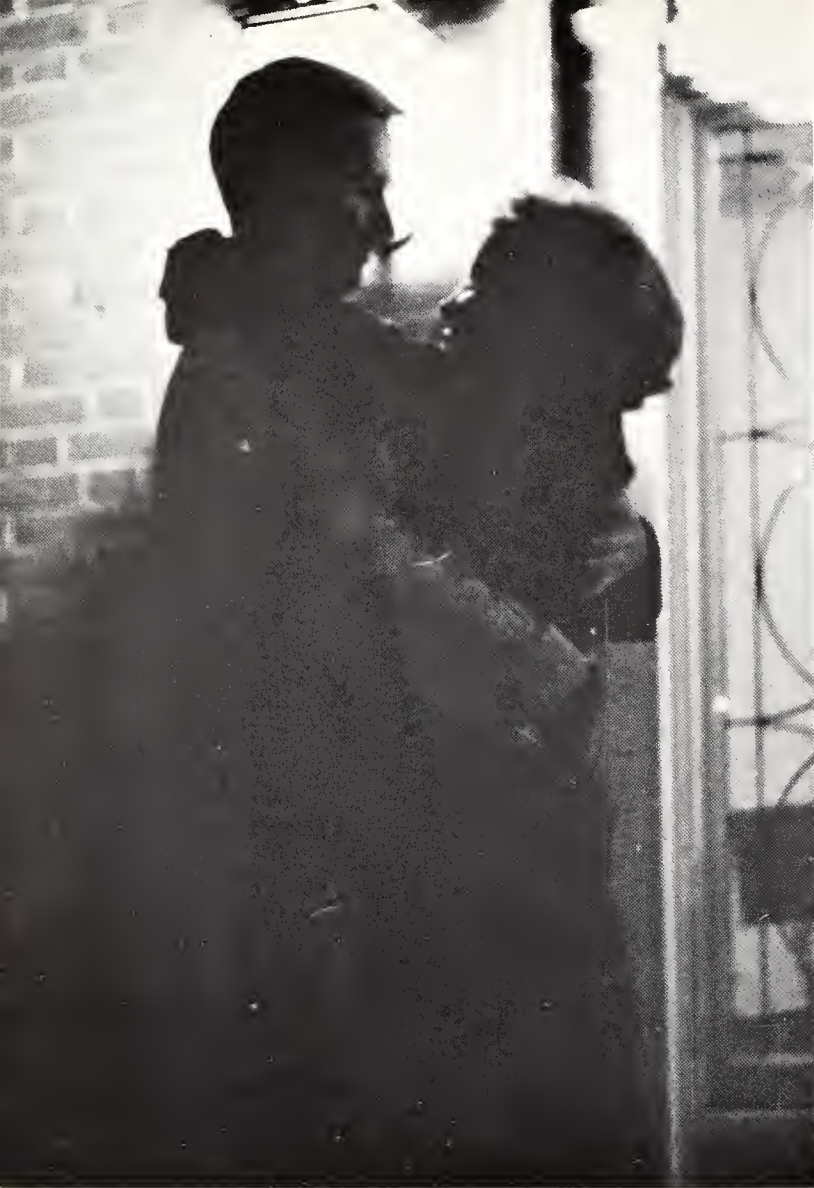

these faces . . .

. . . eyes that met across a crowd
. . . a profile that embodied joy
. . . tears of fear through clenched fingers
. . . one glance that was a conversation

. . . deep, dark, sleepless-circled eyes
. . . silent, expressive lips
. . . broody, empty staring
. . . pleasure-rosed cheeks

- . . . flirtatious, happy, simple eyes
- . . . lips, close, warm
- . . . understanding and agreement in a private wink

I shall remember . . .

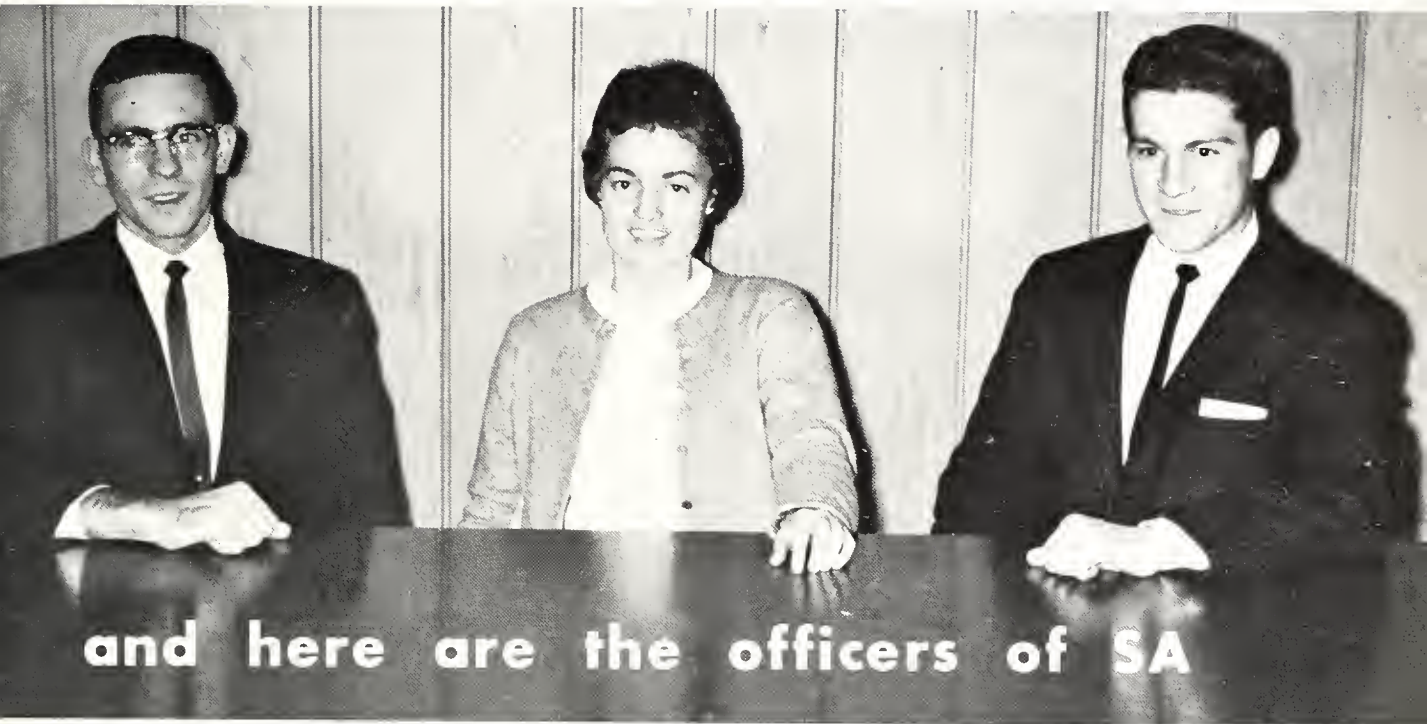

BEREA

. . . these components of me
. . . this interim of being.

Meet the president . . .

Larry Greathouse, president of the Student Association

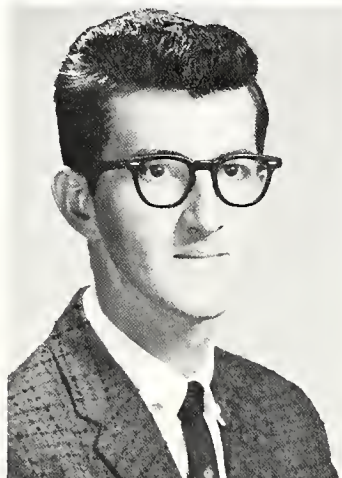

Odell Owens, treasurer; Shirley Fink, secretary; Phillip Cann, Vice President.

Margaret Carroll,
Communications officer

Ron Hayes, Parliamentarian

Glenn Ihrig,
All-School Social Chairman

A special thanks from the Senior Class of 1962 to Dr. Jerome Hughes for his ever-readiness to help and his contributions to the success of our undertakings.

FOUNDATION SCHOOL

As we, the Senior Class of 1962, leave Berea Foundation, we will remember Berea in many ways. The numerous friendships we have formed here—friendships among both students and faculty—shall be dominant among our memories. Our friendship with our Dean of Women will especially be remembered. Because of her untiring work, encouraging friendliness, patience, guidance, and leadership, we will remember her as an administrator, a teacher, and a personal friend. In recognition of her devoted service to the Foundation School, the Senior Class dedicates its 1962 CHIMES to JOANNE NICHOLSON.
